VISION

- To help couples experience the heart-connected, emotionally-fulfilling relationship that God intends for them.
- To assist churches by:
 - Holding marriage conferences/workshops in churches.
 - Teaching workshops for teenagers on the importance of remaining morally pure before marriage. These workshops would discuss the impact of promiscuity on a person's emotions and future marriage relationship.
 - Making counseling materials available for churches to use.
 - Teaching heart-focused counseling techniques to interested individuals within churches.
- To develop materials to be used in a church or small group context that will teach couples how to develop a connected relationship.
- To help leadership teams in churches and ministries learn to work together effectively for the good of their individual churches and God's kingdom.
- To develop an engagement seminar for Christian college students.
- To have one or two volunteers who would be willing to meet with couples and help them resolve financial issues.
- To have a number of volunteers who are willing to mentor and/or disciple single individuals after the person counsels with CFTHNE.
- To develop a counseling internship program to train other CFTHNE counselors, as well as lay counselors throughout New England.
- To pray for, look for and train a younger couple with a heart for this ministry and the ability to do heart-focused counseling well. This couple could take over the leadership of CFTHNE when the Meisels can no longer serve in this capacity.
